Acupressure, derived from the ancient system of Chinese Medicine which gave us acupuncture, has been called “acupuncture without needles.” Chinese Medicine utilizes a broad range of modalities and tools to help people attain physical, emotional, and spiritual health and well-being. This series of classes will present students with a basic working knowledge of the theory and practice of Chinese Medicine using the most basic and powerful of those tools: the fingers. Acupressure can be used to treat many common health issues such as emotional stress, digestive issues, cardiovascular disorders, and fatigue.

Because such issues are frequently the root cause of muscular tension and pain, integrating acupressure into bodywork sessions can result in a dramatic improvement in therapeutic results.

Ching Liu has over 25 years of experience in holistic health. He received his Master's in Traditional Oriental Medicine Summa Cum Laude from Emperor's College in Santa Monica, CA. Prior to that, he trained extensively in a variety of somatic therapies at the Institute of Psycho-Structural Balancing in Culver City, CA.

In Los Angeles, Ching was a licensed Acupuncturist for over 11 years. In addition he was a professor and The Faculty Chair of the Acupuncture Department at, English Section, at SCU-SOMA. He has also taught at Emperor's College, SAMRA University, and Dongguk University.
